La nuova frontiera della medicina* (Hippocrates Edizioni medico-scientifiche), Amiche del cuore (Giunti editore), Disease management: rischio cardiovascolare e differenze di genere (Pacini editore).

We have taken part in the Ministerial Women's Health Commission and subsequently in all the National Days organized by the Ministry.

We participated in the drafting of the Ministerial publication on gender as a determinant of health.

We have been part of the FNOM-CeO Study, research and documentation monitoring center's gender medicine working group since 2014.

We have promoted medical profession literacy by including two supplements on the topic in the SIMG journal and we have spoken about it incessantly in the congress sessions organized by our regional sections and at our annual national congress.

We have developed a national project against violence against women, named "Viola", proposing the displaying of a dedicated poster in general practitioners' surgeries, informing women that they can turn to their general practitioner for help or simply someone to listen.

This is, of course, an on-going mission that constantly sets itself new challenges and new goals, which we are tackling both on a national level and with training courses that are organized with the association of physicians and the local institutions.

The working group that deals with this aspect is formed of women and men of all ages who, at this year's national congress in Florence, recited a statement supporting the solidarity protests against violence. ■

The A.M.M.I. mission today

The A.M.M.I., the Italian Doctors' Wives Association, was founded in Mantua in 1970 by a group of doctors' wives. Over the years it has changed and evolved to keep in step with the times. In addition to the female partners of doctors, its members are female doctors, pharmacists, biologists and mothers of health-care professionals. It is now present throughout Italy, with some 65 local sections located in Northern, Central and Southern Italy.

The A.M.M.I. is a public health association whose purpose is to promote health education and prevention and to inform the public – and in particular school children – by holding lectures and round tables on current affairs in the scientific and social sectors, in conjunction with medical professionals. Every year, on 18 October, the feast-day of St Luke, the patron saint of doctors, lectures and round tables are held across the country to discuss a specific topic of current medical or social relevance that is proposed and voted by the various local sections. On April 22 we celebrate the Women's Health Day.

Since 2011, the A.M.M.I. has promoted and encouraged awareness regarding gender-specific pharmacology and medicine. The aim is to inform the general public that medicine and therapy should be differentiated according to gender, as the symptoms of illness and the efficacy of medicinal products differ for women and men.

With a call for bids for a 10 thousand-euro grant, established 7 years ago, we support the gender-specific medicine and pharmacology. This call aims to bring young researchers closer to a different outlook on all areas of medicine.

A commission formed of professionals with expertise in the gender-specific medicine field reviews the very many, scientifically-valid research projects submitted. The young researchers who join it are numerous with many very valid research projects.

The SIMG against violence

*The young women and men who have become physicians Proud members of the Italian Society of General Medicine and Primary Care
Will never stand silent in any place and under any circumstance
In which human beings are forced to be suffer distress and humiliation violence is not strength but weakness and it remains the ultimate refuge of the incapable all of us, male and female, young and old, stand with our patients
with their children
with our female colleagues who have been molested at work with our male colleagues who have been assaulted while performing their professional duties with those who are considered different we will be their voice when they are unable to speak regardless of the color of their skin, their origin, or their sexual preferences as doctors, because avoiding violence is a question of health as people, because solidarity and respect are still values as men, because not all men are violent and as women, because we are half of the sky and we want to continue lighting it.*

The Association has been awarded two bronze medals by the Chairs of the Italian Senate and Chamber of Deputies for its support of gender-specific medicine and pharmacology.

Our on-going commitment to dealing with gender-specific medicine is aimed at obtaining more and more correct diagnosis and therapy for each patient and to stimulate the competent healthcare facilities to operate with targeted interventions.

A.M.M.I. has also set up a literary competition to be close to young people and to investigate their problems. ■
